Planning for a Graceful Exit

Of all the events that we plan, the one we most avoid even thinking about is our own funeral or memorial service.

Making our own end of life decisions and planning our own final celebration is a huge gift to our family. We can spare them many difficult and costly decisions, while they deal with the stress of loss.

Someone planned our baptism, someone planned our confirmation, someone planned our wedding, but we can and should plan the rest.

We are a people with diverse beliefs, backgrounds and opinions and we don’t always agree on everything - family included. However, if we write down and share our wishes, many questions and arguments can be avoided.

If you are ready to think about planning your own, or a family member's, final arrangements, do join us for this informative lecture. An impressive workbook is included in the cost. Bring a family member with you, as you prepare this incredible gift for those you love.
